How to test for a sealed or treated surface...

To find out if the concrete you're working with has been stained or sealed try this simple test: Sprinkle water onto the concrete surface. If the water beads up or doesn't appear to soak in, the concrete is either sealed or too smooth for staining (very smooth concrete needs to be roughened to take stain).

Home Owners Tip

Most sealers can be stripped with a methylene chloride based stripper, but if possible determine what sealer was used on the concrete and contact the manufacturer for recommendations about removal.
